Forecast For Scotland
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Sunday 30 May 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Warm sunshine on Sunday. North Sea haar.

Today:
Most places dry with plenty of warm sunshine, any low cloud and haar burning back to North Sea coasts where it could linger. Isolated afternoon showers over the hills.

Tonight:
Some late sunshine this evening. Then the rest of the night will be and mostly clear, but mist and low cloud will affect parts of the east and Northern Isles.

Monday:
Dry and sunny across most of Scotland, but haar may linger along northeastern coasts and the Northern Isles. Becoming warm, locally very warm in the northwest.

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Remaining dry, warm and bright on Tuesday and Wednesday although patchy haar may affect the east coast. Turning unsettled on Thursday with some rain, especially in the south.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.